Three-Day Celebration At Mission Beach Characterizes First Birthday Anniversary

Unique in the annals of all beach entertainment will be the three-day program arranged by the management of Mission Beach Amusement Center for the celebration of the first anniversary of the opening of the fascinating beach resort.

With publicity having been broadcasted throughout Southern California and Arizona, it is anticipated that thousands of visitors will attend the ceremonies Saturday and arrange to be among the guests Sunday and Monday. Decoration day falling on Sunday, Monday will be a legal holiday, which will attract many out-of-town guests.

Outstanding feature of the three-day program will be the program of riding acts, "The Western Cut-Up," which will be presented on the beach Saturday, Sunday and Monday afternoons. Horses trained for the motion picture camera and accustomed to the surf will perform with their riders, entering the sea in startling performances. These horses from the Pacific Beach Riding Academy have been in many motion picture scenes.

Dances in gay costumes by Mrs. Eleanor Erickson and Miss Maud Hallum of the Hemphill Dancing Academy will be given on the platform to be built out on the beach fronting the esplanade. A chorus of shapely bathing beauties will do a Charleston and as a finale will present the knife to Joe Seltzer, manager of the Mission Beach Casino cafe, who will cut the huge birthday cake. This marvelous creation of the culinary art will be three feet in diameter, built in three tiers each a foot high, and weighing 75 pounds, and will be baked at Hamilton's. Inscribed with the words, "First Anniversary of Mission Beach Amusement Center," and topped with a single candle to denote the completion of this most beautiful beach resort in Southern California. The youngest child in a bathing suit will be chosen to light the candle of the cake, and after the cutting the children will be served first, those in bathing suits to have the preference of the first pieces. Any that remains will be served to the adults.

Beach and water sports for the children will be a large part of the afternoon's program, with a treasure hunt on the sands.

Anniversary dinner at Mission Beach Casino cafe will be one of the most beautiful of the many celebration dinners given at this delightful cafe. The anniversary ball at the Mission Beach ballroom will be one of the most colorful ever given, with the crashing climax in features, the big "Storm," a ballroom novelty originated at Mission Beach.

Fireworks which will surpass any display ever given at Mission Beach will be touched off at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, and again on Sunday evening. More of them and more beautiful than any before is the word on this pyrotechnic display, according to the management.

Sunday aftrenoon will have a treasure hunt for the children on the beach, and sports and races, with a variation of games and a treasure hunt Monday.

Dancing at the ballroom will commence at 3 p. m. Sunday and Monday, and with two orchestras playing for the dancing, will continue until midnight.

Advance interest in the huge program to be staged at Mission Beach has attracted the attention of motion picture news reel men and photographers, and it is anticipated that pictures of this celebration will go out over the country in several forms.

M. B. SAYINGS AND DOINGS

Miss Aurelia Pennekamp of Los Angeles was the guest of Miss Polly Grove, 728 Windimere Court, for several days last week. Miss Pennekamp is visiting friends in San Diego before returning to her home.

Mrs. R. T. Waite and little daughter, of Denver, Colo., have taken the Day cottage at 733 Bockaway Court for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Thede and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. David Thede, spent last Saturday and Sunday in Palomar Mountains.

The Bridge club was entertained this week at the home of Mrs. J. M. Asher. Delightful refreshments were served on the card tables. The first prize was won by Mrs. H. B. Luke, and the consolation prize went to Mrs. Charles Hillary.

Miss Ruth Grove was the hostess last Sunday at an informal afternoon on the beach, followed by a dinner at her home on Windimere Court. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Handley and two children, Damon and Ruth, of Chula Vista.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL

The church service held at 11 a. m. in the west room of the school building on Santa Barbara place is being conducted by Rev. D. T. Reed. Next Sunday there will be a special sermon with memorial features and good music.

The rapidly growing Sunday school extends a special invitation to the adults of the community to attend. There is a fine prospect for an adult Bible class and it is hoped a large number will avail themselves of the privilege of becoming charter members next Sunday. The response to the Cradle Roll was excellent, now making five departments.

Mrs. F. E. Lundblade, 109 Rockaway Court, entertained in honor of the birthday of her son, Billy, last Wednesday evening. Dinner was served on the beach. Japanese lanterns hung over the tables made an effective decoration and lighted up the birthday cake, which with its candles formed the centerpiece. After dinner the time was passed playing games, telling stories and toasting marshmallows around the bonfire. Those present were Richard McNulty, Gordon Turner, Raymond Harris, Kendall Harris, Paul Young, Billy Roberts, Jesse Barnhill, J. T. Barnhill, Jack Lundblade and Billy Lundblake.

FINE FEATURE PICTURES FOR GRANADA THEATRE IN LA JOLLA

Were one to indulge in a pun on words, he might say, "For Heaven's Sake" don't be "Womanhandled," but attain "Greater Glory" by Witnessing Laura La Plante in "The Teaser" at the Granda theatre in La Jolla, and thus include the titles of all the pictures which make up the program for the current week, beginning with the matinee performance today at 2:30.

Laura La Plante makes her Granada screen debut in "The Teaser" today (Saturday, May 29). It is heralded as being a liberal course in feminine enchantment, with revelations to the male and female of the species. And it is riotously funny, crammed with screaming situations, and enacted by a stellar comedy cast.

"Women have a hard time because they won't let men let them alone," such is Richard Dix's answer to Gloria Swanson, who said in "Manhandled" that women have a hard time because men won't let them alone. This feature picure attraction for Sunday and Monday, "Womanhandled," is a farce comedy of modern life on the ranch, where men are men, and women are governors.

"For Heaven's Sake," Harold Lloyd's latest feature length picture, will be the attraction for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 1 and 2. It is the story of an uplifter to stir up laughter. Harold Lloyd is king of laughter today, for the simple reason that laughs follow him as rainbows follow showers. Add up all this great comedian's past successes, multiply by two, and you'll still be short of the net result of "For Heaven's Sake!" As added features, the first of the new Mazie series, "Fighting Hearts," wil be shown.

"The Greater Glory," a post-war story, is the feature attraction for Thursday and Friday. Adapted from Edith O'Shaughnessy's novel "Viennese Medley," by June Mathis, it co-stars Anna Q. Nilsson with Conway Tearle. A comedy and news reel will also be shown.

Timely Facts And Figures On Ocean Beach Paving

PROPERTY OCCUPIED BY "THE BEACH NEWS" CITED AS EXAMPLE

During the past week many property owners of Ocean Beach have received notices of paving assessments for street work recently completed and City Clerk Allen H. Wright announces that Monday, June 7, at 10 o'clock, has been fixed by the council as the time for hearing appeals from said work or assessment. It is especially stated that all appeals must be filed in writing prior to the above date.

In order to acquaint property owners with the method of assessment pursued by the superintendent of streets for paving improvements, "The Beach News" has obtained, through the courtesy of E. W. Sayles, assessment clerk at the city hall, the following facts and figures, using for illustration the block on which "The Beach News" office is located at 4829 Saratoga avenue, Ocean Beach.

Block 54, Lots 25 to 36, Inclusive

De Foe Street (paved)

Saratoga Avenue (Unpaved)	25	Wilson	$402.70
	26	Wilson	107.30
	27	Wilson	28.38
	28	Van Houten	28.38
	29	Van Houten	26.78
	30	Kirk and Katherine Smith	26.78
	31	Kirk and Katherine Smith	24.99
	32	Kirk and Katherine Smith	24.99
	33	Kirk and Katherine Smith	23.19
	34	Kirk and Katherine Smith	23.19
	35	Kirk and Katherine Smith	21.40
	36	Callighan	21.40
Alley (Unpaved)	37	Callighan

It will be noticed from the diagram that the first twelve lots from De Foe street are assessed pro rata for the boulevard paving, the same being true of 300 feet each way of both sides of the several avenues from the newly paved streets running longitudinally in the beach district.

All lots in the first twelve are assessed 63 cents each for paving of the alley and intersection. The corner lot is assessed $66.09 for the street intersection and the remaining eleven are assessed $10.01 each for the same purpose. The district assessment for the first four lots is $17.94 each, the next pair $16.14, and the succeeding pairs $14.35, $12.54 and $15.70, respectively.

The frontage assessment for the corner lot is $318.04 and the adjoining lot $78.72, with no frontage assessment against the remaining ten of the first dozen.

The total assessment against each lot is given in the above tabular diagram. Upon acceptance by the council twenty days will have to elapse before the assessments go to bond at 7 per cent interest. No single assessment less than $25 can go to bond, but if not paid within the allotted twenty days the property is penalized with ten per cent interest for two years. The bonds run ten years, with interest payable semi-annually and one-tenth of the principal every January. The whole amount can be paid at any time within the period, with six months' advance interest added.

There will be no future assessment unless property abuts on a street when duly paved or is within 300 feet of another newly paved street. The contractor's price for paving De Foe was 19½ cents; Del Monte 17 cents, and Santa Monica 15 3-10 per square foot. The width of the streets paved vary from thirty-six to forty feet.

WANT NEW ARC LIGHTS

Neighborhood property owners have petitioned the council for an arc light at Bolinas and Green street, and more illumination is also wanted at the Ocean Beach end of the Mission Bay bridge.

SIGN POSTED TOO HIGH

Speaking of signs, have you noticed the large, beautiful sign pointing to San Diego via Mission Beach which the Mission Beach company some time ago placed on top of the durg store at the intersection of Cass and Garnet avenues? Out of some twelve or fifteen questioned, a number of whom pass that corner, not one single person had seen it. The sign itself is splendid, but unfortunately it is totally wasted, placed as it is, on top of a building.

TIED TOGETHER, MAN AND WIFE END THEIR LIVES

Leave Note Saying "We Made Up Our Minds to Die Together."

St. Louis.—"We made up our minds to die together. Both want to die at the same time. When the rich can't live, how can the poor? We are poor."

A policeman who entered an attic bedroom at 3415-17A Lemp avenue found this note penciled in German on a paper bag. In the bed were the gas-asphyxiated bodies of Joseph M. Oswald, fifty-three years old, and his wife, Mary, forty-three, who owned the whole building and lived in the attic.

The policeman opened the windows. An ambulance was summoned and the bodies sent to the morgue.

Carefully Planned.

Great care had been taken to prevent failure of the suicide plans. The door and windows had been locked, and carpets draped over the door. A rubber tube had been suspended from an open gas light jet in the ceiling to a point directly over the foot of the bedstead, to which it was tied with string. Then the couple lay down in bed with their faces close to the escaping gas, and to make certain they did not move, a clothesline had been looped under the bed and over the bodies, and tied, with the knot resting within reach of Oswald.

The odor of gas reached a second-floor tenant, Mrs. Mary Pretaboir, and she called Patrolman William A. Krueger, who broke in the bedroom door and found the note and the bodies.

Rented Part of House.

On the reverse of the note, which was translated into English by neighbors, was written the name, "Joseph M. Oswald," a quotation, "Live With

Thus They Died.

God," three crossmarks and an "Amen." There were also the name, address and telephone number of a niece, Kate Schiebel, employed at 3634 Castleman avenue.

The Oswalds lived frugally. They bought the house several years ago. It is a two-story, four-family brick flat with a large attic. They rented the lower floors and reserved the attic for themselves having a bedroom, living room and kitchen. They derived a monthly income of $95 in rentals from the flats and garages in the rear. No money or bank book was found in their rooms.

Oswald had worked as a machinist until ill health kept him unemployed in recent years. His wife also suffered from illness. They once moved away from the city for the sake of their health, but were not benefited and they returned to the attic eighteen months ago. Their niece, Miss Schiebel, visited them weekly. Oswald was last seen alive Friday night when he went downstairs into the back yard.

Hens Eat Nails and Then Lay—Dead as Doornails

Lamoni, Iowa.—Hereafter if a chicken belonging to W. W. Simpson gets hold of a nail it will have to pull it out of a fence or a roof, because none will be left lying around for eating purposes. Some thirty chickens on the Simpson farm became ill and no remedy he gave helped. Several died and a post-mortem was held on one. A nail was found in its gizzard. Believing the other sick chickens were suffering from the same cause, Mr. Simpson called in a veterinarian and operations were performed on the chickens. From one to five nails were found in the craws and gizzards of each. Simpson had left a keg of nails uncovered and the chickens ate them all.

SOME FISH DISHES

FISH are always in season, fresh or canned, and many wholesome dishes may be prepared by using the seasonable kinds of those whose prices agree with one's purse. There is no way of serving the firm-fleshed fresh fish like roasting. Fill with the following stuffing and bake until very tender:

Piquant Stuffing.

Pour half a cupful of vinegar over three cupfuls of bread crumbs, squeeze dry and add to the crumbs one-half cupful of melted butter, one cupful of chopped olives, three chopped pickles, one small green pepper and curry powder to taste.

Broiled Fish.

Any good-sized fish of firm flesh is good for broiling. Split the fish, remove the backbone and brush with melted butter, broil over a clear coal fire if possible, or under a gas flame. A five-pound fish will require a half an hour. Serve with latticed potatoes which have been fried brown.

Fresh Fish Balls.

Flake any left-over cooked fish and mix with an equal quantity of seasoned mashed potatoes, fresh and hot; make into balls, add egg and dip into egg and crumbs.

Baked Trout With Shrimp Sauce.

Wash and dry a large trout. Gash each side in half a dozen places and lay in each gash a strip of fat salt pork. Brush the fish inside and out with melted butter mixed with lemon juice. Put a rack in a baking pan; on it lay the fish, pour a cupful of boiling water into the bottom of the pan and place in a very hot oven. Allow 12 minutes to the pound for cooking and baste three or four times during the cooking. Cook together one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, add the water from the pan after removing the fish, season with salt, pepper, a little kitchen bouquet, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-half cupful of finely-chopped shrimps. If the sauce is too thick add boiling water. Garnish with parsley and lemon quarters.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MASTERING SELF

THE serious matter of mastering self, of subduing at the right moment the flame of passion when it begins to hiss and flare up, calls for exceptional patience of which most of us are sadly deficient.

A glaring eye, without a word being spoken, may sever the friendship of years and set humans fighting and clutching at each other's throats.

"He that is slow to anger," says the good Book, "is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

How many hearts have ached for days and days, because of an angry word, spoken in a fit of bitter resentment!

How many homes have been undone for the same reason.

Impassable gulfs have suddenly opened which time can never bridge, because two hot-headed persons have lost control of their tempers, and are too proud to admit their error.

Ill humor, asperity, frowns, scowls and angry words, if you will consider the results they produce, will be found to be the direct cause of more failures in life than the lack of ability.

Men and women of temperament, quick to the touch, as a hair-trigger, have frequently lost prized opportunities in a moment of irascibility, by blurting out a snarling word which a day later they would gladly give anything they own to recall.

Even death, which might have been averted by self-control, has occurred from a sudden burst of passion followed by a seething storm of words.

If something rankles your spirit, or sets your heart pounding at an unusual speed, say nothing until you can compose yourself.

Cares, anxieties, sorrows and disappointments in many lives will be found to be the kins of tiffs, tantrums, irritability and a contentious spirit.

Try to forget them by cultivating new thoughts and a closer communion with faith and the great outdoors.

Whether a principal or a subordinate, the one thing under all conditions to do when in a state of mental disturbance is to hold your tongue until the peppery storm subsides, and you feel and know that you are once more capable of mastering self.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Zona Gale Was Earning $15 a Week.

"AT THE age of twenty-one I was employed on the staff of the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin at a salary of $15 a week.

"At that time my ambition was to write fiction and plays—the only ambition connected with work which I have ever had, save to write much better stuff than I had already written.—Zona Gale."

TODAY—Zona Gale is one of America's leading writers. In one respect she is unique among American women writers in that she produces both novels and plays. No other American authoress has done that save Rida Johnson Young, and she is known more as a librettist and playwright than as a novelist.

The work that brought Miss Gale fame was "Miss Lulu Bett," a novel which won the Pulitzer prize for the best American novel of the year and which later, in dramatic form, had a long run in New York and throughout the country. The second play of Zona Gale's, "Mr. Pitt," also dramatized by her from one of her novels, was produced, but did not duplicate the success of her first stage venture.

HEARTS COURAGEOUS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO are your heroes? Though the brave
Deserve the tribute of the free,
I'm sure not all the banners wave
Above the ranks of chivalry.
For some no banners wave at all;
And yet some heroes I recall
With hearts courageous, though no scrolls
Pay tribute to their fighting souls.

I know a woman, one who had
Husband and house, and wealth and ease,
Yes, all the things that make you glad
Who know the joy of things like these;
And then she lost them, one by one;
They slipped away as slips the sun,
Until she stood as stands the lone
Old oak when all the birds have flown.

As stands the oak! For still she stood,
Her roots in earth, her head in heaven,
And spoke of life as something good,
And thought of grief as something given.
However hard her hardest mile,
She wore for poverty a smile,
And talked of God in all her grief
With stronger faith and more belief.

And I, who have my petty loss,
Seek not new courage in old tales;
I see a woman with a cross,
Yet one whose laughter never fails
Who are your heroes? You who read
The story of some stranger's deed,
May seek the brave in tales of war
While some great soul smiles on next door.

The Hotel Stenographer

By Roe Fulkerson

"LOOK at 'em smoking!" said the House Detective with disapproval.

"I see 'em every day, drop into the lobby here to puff a coffin tack," answered the Hotel Stenographer, glancing at three girls in a big divan in Peacock Alley. "I don't mind 'em, Kelly, because I know it is not their fault.

"I do not smoke, though I do not deserve any particular credit for being one of the few who do not. We are all the result of our home training. Those girls live in families where fathers and mothers play twenty-five-cent limit, and both sides of the family carry a cigarette case. Of course they smoke. Youngsters imitate their parents from the time they play house, and dress up in their parents' clothes to do it.

"I come from a family where father still drinks his coffee out of a mustache cup.

"My mother is religious; too, and her children are all hand-spanked. I am past twenty-one, but not past spanking, and if I lit one of those things in our flat, I know what would happen to me, although I would not be in a position to see it. We still put all the dinner on the table at one time and say grace, so I would hardly be expected to smoke.

"As the lady said, when her daughter fell in the well, it is mighty hard to raise a daughter, but most of us imitate our mothers and make a few improvements on the model, and let it go at that.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

WORLD—HER HUSBAND

Chapter I.

FOR three days and nights Piedmont Spray was all action, forcefulness and enthusiasm, not to say pep.

The idea had come to him to refurbish his fishing tackle, to make it gleam like new and shine like the deuce, and every spare second and every loose moment he was shining, painting, nickeling, scraping and polishing.

He arose at five in the morning to get in a few extra rubs before breakfast. He hurried home from the office to shine and scrub before supper, and after supper he stayed up scouring and painting till the small hours of the morning.

Chapter II.

"Piedmont," said Mrs. Spray timidly, "I wonder if you'd mind fixing the kitchen shade for me? I'm sure it wouldn't take you more than a minute, or an hour at the most."

Piedmont Spray drew himself up to his full height and expansion, and his eyes blazed with honest indignation.

"I'm a business man—not a carpenter or a mechanic," he withered. "When I come home for peace and quietness, thoroughly exhausted by the day's toil—by what am I greeted? By a soothing and comforting sympathy? No! By a cold-blooded demand that I spend the night hopping on and off kitchen tables. No, madam by the Lord Harry, no!"

PARADOXURE

"My name," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "is a name everyone can't have."

"Ah, good friend," said one of the other animals, "it is a name everyone doesn't want to have.

"Some would find it quite hard to go through life with a name like yours.

"Everyone would get it wrong and there would be so many mistakes and so much confusion.

"People and animals without a doubt must feel relieved that they haven't such a name."

"Well," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "it may be all very well for people and animals not to want my name.

"But let me tell you one thing—they couldn't have it!

"No, only a white-whiskered Paradoxure can own such a fine name."

"It's good you like it," said the other animal. "I'm glad to hear you like something."

"Ha, ha," laughed the white-whiskered Paradoxure, and then turned his laugh into a cough, for he did not want to be too pleasant.

A Puma.

"Of course I like my name, and I don't think much of anyone who doesn't like it," he said.

"There you are, cross again," said the other animal. "Tell me, Paradoxure, what makes you so cross?"

"Would you really like to know?"

"Yes."

"Really and truly?"

"Really and truly."

"Honestly?"

"Honestly."

"Then say 'please.' I may be cross, but you don't have to be."

"Please."

"Well," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "when one looks like a puma and isn't one that is enough to annoy a creature.

"I'm always being mistaken for a puma.

"Then my home is supposed to be in China and I'm not there.

"That's annoying.

"Then I have a name which, to tell you the truth (even though you know it)—but at least to admit the truth, is so hard for everyone to get.

"It is so hard they make mistakes in it all the time.

"That is trying, especially when one has such a fine and handsome name as I have.

"Then I am stared at without being introduced; well, it is all enough to make a creature cross.

"And so I snarl and I growl at the people who look at me, and I try to say to them:

"'Proud people, you are looking at the Paradoxure with white whiskers, who is known as the white-whiskered Paradoxure from China.

"'He doesn't look like every creature you see around the zoo or around the town or around the schoolhouses.

"'But you all look alike and there is nothing interesting about you.

"'So I am snarling at you and growling at you with disgust as I look at you.

"'That is what I am doing, I am.

"'I only hope you understand.'"

Try This

A certain college professor was apt to make his students drowsy when he lectured to them, and one day a student fell fast asleep.

"Wake that man next to you up," the professor thundered at the unfortunate student's neighbor.

"Wake him up yourself," the reply came back. "You put him to sleep."

Community Building

Unkempt City Shows Lack of Enterprise

If cities allow themselves to become slouchy, unkempt, and dirty, they are certain to lose in self-respect and pride, and from that loss they suffer materially, industrially, and commercially, as well as esthetically, morally and spiritually. Strangers are not far wrong in inferring that a dirty town is an unenterprising town, inhabited by unenterprising people, people "who do not care," and are unwilling to take pains. A worse advertisement there could hardly be. It would be a wonderful thing — wonderful even from the business point of view—if the advertising men could portray Indianapolis to the world as the city of pure air, clean skies, and brilliant sunshine. It is in such towns that people are seeking residence, for reasons both of comfort and health. It is possible for Indianapolis to make just that sort of appeal. Under the aggressive leadership which it is now creating it should, and we trust will, be possible for it to make that appeal. Everything within reason should be done to make the town handsome and beautiful—and clean. There are many cities in America that are abundantly endowed with factories, but there are few that are clean, and very few that are beautiful. Here, then, is a chance for real distinction, and the sort of distinction that we can advertise legitimately, and with excellent effect.—Indianapolis News.

Home Ownership Shows Pride in Citizenship

"There is no question that while one is in possession of health, sanity and cool judgment, he should decide to put a little of his earnings away for a certain wise, loving and practical purpose, the finest of which is the acquiring of a good home," C. P. Goodson told interested home-builders who attended his lecture at Detroit.

"When a man owns his own home, he has title in one of the world's best possessions. Figuratively speaking, a home owner has hammered a stake into the ground and tied his heartstrings to it. His pride in his own accomplishment is translated into civic pride in his community, which he has helped to grow and prosper.

"The acquiring of a home is now an everyday affair," he pointed out, "and rightly so, for today it is a decidedly easier undertaking than formerly. Reliable builders, bankers, trust companies and building and loan societies are willing to aid the home builder in financing his home."

Love of Home Town

This is your Andalusia. You who live here constitute the town. All its future greatness depends in a large measure upon your ability to shape the trend of thought and action so as to insure greater growth. Those who lived and planned for the city and passed on left us a heritage which we are honor bound to improve upon and pass on to the next generation with conditions much improved and with her growth and progress unimpaired. May we not think always of Andalusia as our town; as a thing of which we are a part and that whatever is good for Andalusia reflects creditably upon us? People who live long in a town learn to love the town and those who love their home town always stand ready to work and sacrifice for their town.—Adalusia (Ala.) Star.

House That "Fits"

The house which you buy comes to you like a second-hand garment—made, fitted and ornamented for some one else. Living in it always will be a matter of putting up with conditions which you only half like. And life is far too short for that kind of living. On the other hand the house built by yourself is essentially and in every respect yours—built after your own ideas, to fit your needs and to satisfy your desires.—New York Herald-Tribune.

The Town Forest

The town forest is a handy local picture of the value of the forest. It is the property of the members of the community. They own it and protect it. They will be quick to punish those who endanger it with fire. They will actively oppose unwarranted trespass upon it. Thus the citizens of the community come to have the view of all forests. As an example and lesson alone, the value of the community forest is great.

Home as Anchorage

Communities that are better than other communities generally will be found to be those in which the custom of families owning the houses they occupy is rooted strongly. Such ownership tends to preserve the best features of social order and prevent the intrusion of evil.

Light From the Earth

Earthshine is the faint light that is visible on one portion of the moon which is not directly illuminated by the sun. It is due to the light which the earth reflects on the moon, and is most conspicuous soon after new moon, when the sun-illuminated part of the moon's disk is smallest.

WOMAN COULD NOT SLEEP

Her Mother-in-Law Knew A Remedy

Mrs. Belle Thompson was in a very weak and run-down condition for four years. She had great difficulty in getting to sleep at night and even then did not sleep soundly. She would wake up again and again. Besides this her appetite was poor. "My mother-in-law told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash," she writes. "I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I was not the same woman at all. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does me more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me." —Mrs. Belle Thompson, R. 2, Rossville, Georgia.

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health? If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped others, why shouldn't it help you?

Young vigor to old folks

Thoughts On Memorial Day

Contributed to "The Beach News"
By A. C. Niven

This is the national day of Memorial—the time when in mind and thought our glorious past is made to live again, and the noble men who moulded and shaped its destiny, though dead, are to memory once more instinct with life and being.

It is the hour when a nation awakes to the remembrance of heroism performed in its defense; the day when a loyal people, grateful for services rendered their country, unite to honor their patriot dead, to enrich and ennoble their own lives by recalling a public valor and a private worth that are immortal; and to encourage, by their solemn services, a more zealous and abiding patriotism in the heart and life of every American citizen.

Differences of party, creed and sect are today forgotten, while North and South, East and West, all over our broad land, our people, with reverent hearts, circle the sacred mounds where sleep our country's dead.

The cares of business, the pursuits of pleasure, the usual and common concerns of secular life, are put aside, while we bring flowers and wreaths of evergreen with which to decorate the graves of men who have sacrificed, on the altar of patriotic devotion, everything that men hold dear, in order to preserve the integrity and unity and to perpetuate the power and glory of our American Republic.

But on this Memorial day let us not forget that many eyes are clouded with tears, that many hearts are heavy with regret, that many lives are desolate because of the father or brother, the husband or lover, who did not come back; and that many graves are the shrines of a sorrow whose influence is still potent, though time has mercifully robbed it of its first keen anguish. Therefore, with our regard for the dead, let us mingle a tender sympathy for the living who mourn for the loved ones they have lost.

And now, comrades and friends, as in the silent camping grounds of our nation's dead, with soldierly reverence and love, we garland these passionless mounds, let us recall to memory the men who, in the time of danger, made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes.

Let us recall their long and weary marches, their intense suffering in the hospitals, their fearful sacrifices in the prison pens, their sublime heroism in the days of battle, and their fidelity to home and country and native land at all times and under all circumstanes—that we who remain may see that the flag under which they fought, and from the shadows of whose folds they were promoted to fame's eternal camping grounds, may never be dishonored; that the country for whose union and supremacy they surrendered that most precious of all earthly things—life—may have the fervent and enthusiastic devotion of every citizen, and as today we stand at every grave as before an altar, we may pledge our manhood that, so help us God, the memory of our country's dead shall strengthen and encourage in us all a deeper and more abiding patriotism.

Cabrillo Theater

Now we are at last to see the real South Seas. Many times they have been described in song, story and fable, but it remained for Robert Flaherty, that intrepid adventurer who filmed "Nanook of the North," to actually take his cameras and picture equipment to Samoa, and there for twenty months he "shot" the scenes for "Moana," the Paramount picture coming to the Cabrillo Theatre on Saturday.

"Moana" is truly "different." Instead of American denizens of Hollywood, we have a cast of natives. Instead of Kleig lights, we are shown a magnificent sun. Instead of hand-painted scenery, with studio walls for a background, one sees gorgeous tropical foliage, so typical of that far-off island Paradise.

Balboa Theater

Norma Talmadge, usually associated with dignified, romantic roles, has turned comedienne in her latest First National picture, "Kiki," which comes to the Balboa Theatre, commencing Saturday. Miss Talmadge enacts the role of the devil-may-care waif who wants a taste of life—and gets it with a vengeance.

As a laugh provoker, "Kiki" is said to be in a class by itself in its appeal to all classes, old and young. The situations are strictly of the 1926 vintage—that is, up to the minute.

The lovely Norma's new leading man is Ronald Colman, and other well-known players in the supporting cast are Gertrude Astor, Marc MacDermott, George K. Arthur, William Orlamond, Erwin Connelly, Frankie Darro and Mack Swain.

Wiring Diagram of the Five-Tube, Three-Control Radio-Frequency Receiver Described in This Article.

By HARRY J. MARX

In New York Herald-Tribune.

Simplicity, efficiency and high quality, all combined, are the arguments for the receiver described in this article. The circuit was first worked out from a simplicity and efficiency angle. Trick features have been eliminated, but every possible little development for improvement in operation has been incorporated.

The circuit is shown in the illustration. Two stages of highly efficient tuned radio frequency amplification, a detector and two real stages of audio-frequency amplification certify to long distance range and the best of tone quality in reception.

Three low-loss pickle bottle coils, combined with high quality straight-line frequency condensers are the major factors in selectivity. The oscillation control permits operation just below the oscillation point of the tube and insures maximum performance with the best tone quality and a minimum drain on the "B" batteries.

One of the particular features of this circuit is the efficiency of the audio stages, not only in the selection of good transformers, but also in the proper use of by-pass condensers in order to filter out all stray radio-frequency currents and extraneous noises. There remains much that is still to be learned about the intelligent use of by-pass condensers.

"C" battery in the grid returns of the audio transformers is another factor in good audio amplification. The loud speaker can be plugged in on either the first or second stage jack of the audio-frequency amplifier. The last jack is filament control for the last tube, so there is no unnecessary current consumption when only the first stage is used.

Size of Set.

The use of a 24-inch panel makes the set a compact one without unnecessary crowding and interstage coupling, which would be detrimental to satisfactory operation. There is no overcrowding in the panel layout and each of the controls is so placed for convenience in tuning. The use of real vernier dials makes tuning a pleasure. The controls are by no means complicated or difficult to operate. A rheostat is used for the detector tube, another for the two radio-frequency amplifier tubes, and a third for the audio stages. The sockets are universal and therefore permit the use of either storage battery or dry cell types of tubes. A resilient spring action in the socket design assures a perfect contact and the elimination of microphonic noises by its non-rigidity.

Nine binding posts on a raised strip are easily accessible and make battery connections a simple matter. Everything is easily assembled and wiring is a simple, rapid operation, with none of those tricky inaccessible connections which are the bane of set constructors.

Apparatus Required.

The first question every fan asks before deciding on the building of a set is "What parts will I need?" The following is the list of apparatus selected by the writer for use in his set:

1 panel, 3-16 by 7 by 24 inches.
1 baseboard, ⅜ by 8 by 23 inches.
3 Eastern classic coils, type EB.
3 National Equicycle SLF condensers, .00035 mfd.
3 National variable velvet vernier dials.
2 Multistage R-D meloformers.
5 Eby UX cushion sockets.
9 Eby "Ensign" binding posts.
1 binding post strip, 3-16 by ¾ by 17¾.
2 Carter "Imp" rheostat, IR-6, 6 ohms.
2 Carter "Imp" rheostat, IR-25, 25 ohms.
1 Carter "Imp" pilot switch.
1 Carter "Hold-Tite" jack, No. 104.
1 Carter "Hold-Tite" jack, No. 103.
1 Centralab radiohm, No. 200-M, 200,000 ohms.
1 Turn-it grid leak.
1 Turn-it panel control.
4 Dubilier condensers, type 656, 0.5 mfd.
1 Dubilier condenser, type 640, .002 mfd.
1 Dubilier grid condenser, type 640-G, .00025 mfd.
15 lengths Celatsite wire, No. 14 (black, red, green, yellow, brown).
1 cabinet to suit.

Miscellaneous screws, lugs, solder, etc.

In the selection of apparatus as listed above it would be well to just consider the reasons for their use. The pickle-bottle type of low-loss winding has become very popular because of its high selectivity features. The coils, when used with the condensers mentioned, cover the complete wavelength band as required for our popular broadcast reception. The vernier dials have the unusual feature of a variable vernier ratio. In other words, the vernier adjustment can be made coarse or fine, as desired.

Color Wiring.

The use of color scheme in wiring is based on some definite plan that is to be followed. In wiring the set this schedule should be followed:

All negative "A" leads use black.
All positive "A" leads use red.
All grid leads use green.
All positive "B" amplifier leads use brown.
All positive "B" detector leads use yellow.

In building the function and potential of each lead can then be told at a glance.

Don't permit the wiring to run too close to the coils. Keep all the plate and grid leads as short as possible.

Winding Form Is Easy to Make From Tubing

The basket-weave form of winding is one of the most compact efficient methods known. With it most any kind of coil or inductive tuner can be made. It has the following features that make it desirable for most every use; compactness, low loss, low capacity, low or no dielectric losses and is easily mounted, being very sturdy and rigid when properly wound and sewed together.

These coils can be wound on any circular form having an uneven number of spokes. The main difficulty encountered is in removing the wire from the form after the winding has been made.

In the illustrated method this has been eliminated. The spokes in the bakelite tube are flexible and will bend in releasing the pressure on the windings and allowing their removal without mutilating them in any way. They are made by first marking the tube and then cutting the slots with a hacksaw. A slot on each side of the tube can be cut at the same time if the blade is set properly on both of the marked lines. Before the coil is removed it should be sewed together by running a piece of thread up and down through the slots in the coil. Do this twice around the coil and then knot tightly. The coil can now be removed and is ready for use. If the builder desires he may leave the coil on the form. It will always hold the coil in shape and serves as a mounting.—Cleveland News.

Loop One Foot Square

A loop one foot square will work with a sensitive receiver. Set the two cross-pieces in the shape of an X and attach the upright piece to one of them. Cut slots in the end of each of the four ends of the cross-piece to receive four pieces of hard rubber 7 by 1 by ¼ inch. Now wind 26 turns of loop wire or standard single lamp cord one-quarter inch apart about the rubber pieces set perpendicular to the frame of the loop.

Short Socket Posts

If the socket binding post is not long enough to hold several loops of bus wire, remove the binding post screw and replace it with a longer one.

Plaits Used on Scarfs

Plaits have a strangle hold on fashion at present and they even clasp the necks of fashion's devotees. The newer scarfs imported from Paris, are of georgette, in all the soft spring colorings. They have the main portion of the scarf, which is wrapped about the throat, plaited, while the ends are left to flare open gracefully.

Black Accessories

Black accessories are again quite en vogue.

New Tweeds in Small Patterns

Equally smart and perhaps a bit more practical are cape coats made of novelty tweeds in combinations of black and white, brown and white, blue and gray, and beige and brown. The patterns are small, rather conventional and very effective.

Flower Embroidery

Delicate embroidery in pastel shades, usually forming flower designs, trims the new chiffon evening gowns.

ARRAYED FOR JUNE WEDDING; TROUSSEAU AFTERNOON FROCKS

IN THE imagination of girlhood, throughout its brief, bright years, vague pictures of brides and bridals float. Occasionally in them, each maiden sees herself the center of interest as a bride; but there are so many interests and distractions in this complex age, that even Prince Charming, before his actual arrival, occupies only a small space on the horizon of youth. Then, almost before she knows it, along comes this particular June and finds many a fair girl (fully as many as usual) face to face with her wedding.

Picturesque Bridal Costume.

Most important of all is the matter of the bride's wedding gown. She has a wide choice of beautiful and graceful styles at her disposal—all of them dignified. She may be simple and ingenious, splendid or picturesque and her maids never had better opportunities to look like pictures. What with sheer fabrics, lovely colors, floating lines and fluttering draperies a bevy of June bridesmaids look more like personified flowers than anything else. But here comes a little procession of wedding gowns, for the inspection of the bride, each created by a great name in the world of stylists. The first is a gown of white crepe satin with long molded bodice, very long, close-fitting sleeves, reaching to the knuckles; round neck, skirt widening into ripples with a scalloped hemline and no vestige of trimming. But the back portion is lengthened into a wide train and over all is a veil of tulle.

Finally comes in the last word in wedding gowns, for the bride whose taste runs to the picturesque and whose style will allow her to indulge it. This is the robe-de-style and an example of it is pictured here. It is to be recommended for the bride who will have only one attendant or none. This is a very youthful mode and may be developed in georgette or in taffeta and lace.

Much is expected of afternoon frocks in the trousseau—it goes without saying that they should be beautiful and it is not difficult to find plenty of them that fill this requirement. But every bride desires that hers should be unusual, as well as beautiful, also more or less dignified and, above all, suited to her personality. Afternoon gowns are the observed of all observers and if they prove the envy of many, they have played their part perfectly.

Beginning with informal afternoon frocks of taffeta or georgette in plain colors and simple decorations, afternoon frocks progress along the path of more elaboration until the dinner gown is reached. It includes combinations of taffeta and lace, plain georgette and lace, figured georgette or chiffon over plain slips, and the reverse of this. There are many pretty soft taffeta frocks in navy blue or black with collars and sleeve trimmings of ecru lace, and sometimes bandings or ecru lace, that are dignified and very useful. Navy or black in georgette, brightened with colored embroidery in silk, and posed over a slip to match the embroidery, or over self color, affords a choice of many conservative gowns which may be varied by slips in different colors worn under them. Scalloped hem lines, tunic flounces and cascading draperies, with ripples, godets and plaits, help to vary them. Plain, light colors in georgette, made up with lace dyed to match, are very effective, especially in the tan and gray tones. The procession of flowered chiffons and combinations of plain and figured fabrics is endless and lands us in the realm of lovely dinner gowns where we shall come across superb examples of embroidery used as the decorative feature. In this class are short-sleeved models.

VALUE OF DIFFERENT METHODS IS SHOWN

Demonstration Being Given in Sorting Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In a study made by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the state extension services of Iowa, New York, Colorado and California, some light is thrown on concrete problems concerning which extension leaders have desired reliable information.

Farm Homes Reached.

Probably one of the most important measures of the results of extension teaching, which has been carried on for ten years under the Smith-Lever act, is the number of farms and farm homes actually reached. The study shows that the highest percentage reached was 88 per cent, in a county where organized extension work had been under way twelve years. The lowest percentage was 60, in a county having had extension agents but six years. Of the 3,954 farms studied in these four states 74 per cent had adopted practices taught by extension forces. A total of 9,833 adoptions of improved practices were reported, an average of 3.4 practices for each farm definitely reached.

Propaganda Influence.

Propaganda methods influenced the adoption of improved practices on 68 per cent of the farms, object-lesson methods on 58 per cent, and personal service methods on 27 per cent. Forty-nine per cent of the farms reported indirect influences.

The importance of the indirect spread of influence of extension was brought out by the fact that extension teachings were accepted by 24 per cent of the farms where the operators were not members of the extension association, had never participated in an extension activity, and had never gotten in touch with representatives of the extension service.

TO REMOVE SCALE FROM WATER BACKS

Circulation and Heating of Water Is Retarded.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Hard water causes a limy deposit or scale on the inside of water backs and heating coils. If allowed to accumulate, the scale retards the circulation and heating of the water, and, by closure of the bore, may prove dangerous. Moreover, continued neglect makes it increasingly difficult to remove the scale.

The water back or coil should be removed from the fire box, says the United States Department of Agriculture. At the union or other joints nearest the fire box, disconnect all pipes and unscrew them from the water back. If there is a clamp which holds the fire-brick lining against the oven, loosen it and remove side and end linings. Lift out the water back and take it out on the ground. Soft scale or sludge may be removed by pounding the water back with a mallet or hammer and then flushing with a strong jet of water. A long gouge or chisel is used on those surfaces that can be reached. Sometimes the water back is heated in a blacksmith's forge and then pounded, but unless carefully done this treatment may break it. Some householders keep a spare water back for use while the other is being cleaned.

Waters of varying chemical composition cause scale differing in composition and hardness. Ordinary lime-stone (calcium carbonate) scale, if not of excessive thickness, may readily be removed with muriatic acid. Gypsum (calcium sulphate) scale is hard and resistant and with other constituents in their more compact forms is little affected by muriatic acid. The water back should be laid on the ground and filled with a strong solution of the acid in water. The strength of the solution should vary with the amount of deposit, the ordinary mixture being one part of acid and five to seven parts of water. If the deposit is very thick, the acid needs little dilution. Commercial muriatic acid in bottles containing six pounds (about two and one-half quarts) costs 20 to 25 cents a pound. The bottle should be labeled "Muriatic acid—poison"; and, like other chemicals, should be kept where children cannot get it. Heating the water back hastens the action of the acid. At the end of an hour or two, or sooner if the deposit is dissolved, pour the solution from the water back and flush it thoroughly with hot water to remove the acid. If all the deposit has not been removed, repeat the operation, making sure that the acid is completely washed out before replacing the water back.

Similar methods may be used with copper coils. Place the coil (or heater) on two sticks over a large bowl. With the aid of a lead funnel pour the acid solution down through the coil. Dip from the bowl and continue to circulate the solution through the coil until the deposit is dissolved. The coil should then be thoroughly washed out with hot water.

The hot-water flow pipe close to a water back or coil frequently becomes thickly covered with scale. If the pipe is brass, it may be disconnected and treated with acid and then washed out with hot water. If the pipe is galvanized iron and in bad condition, it will probably be more satisfactory to replace it with new pipe.

Carrots May Be Served With Other Vegetables

The carrots available in the winter months are the large, mature carrots that have been stored. While they have a somewhat stronger flavor than the tender new carrots of June and July, they can be prepared in many excellent dishes, and also served raw occasionally in salads and in other ways.

As carrots are among the vegetables valued for their vitamines, it is important to cook them the shortest possible time, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. One good way of doing this is to slice them on a vegetable slicer, and then cook them in just enough lightly salted boiling water to cover. In ten minutes or less they will be ready to eat. When drained, seasoned with butter or cream, salt and pepper, and served piping hot, they will appeal to many who protest ordinarily that they "never eat carrots."

Cooked, sliced carrots may, of course, be added to soups or stews and various dishes, or used in making souffles, timbales, croquettes, patties, or fritters. They may be fried with onions or apples or both, or made into a pie with spices, following the usual recipe for pumpkin pie.

Grated raw carrots may be served in salads with other raw vegetables. Combinations such as raw carrot, cabbage, celery, turnip, green pepper, and onion, in almost any preferred proportions, are recommended because of their high vitamine content.

Little Oval Bugs Under a Living-Room Carpet

"I have found some little oval, reddish brown, hairy worms or bugs under my living-room carpet," a woman asks the United States Department of Agriculture. "What are they, and how shall I get rid of them?" These are probably the grubs or larvae of the carpet beetle, which feed on fabrics of all sorts. You must get rid of them or they will get into upholstered furniture, wool, silk, fur or feather articles, much as clothes moths do. Give your rugs a thorough cleaning, beating and sunning, and also any clothing in closets which you think may be susceptible. Wrap up articles that you are putting away for the season in tight packages with naphthalene flakes or parachlorobenzene crystals, which you can usually get at a drug store, just as you would to protect them from clothes moths. Fill up cracks in your flooring with putty or patented crack fillers before you put the rugs back, or treat them with gasoline or kerosene. Do not use these inflammable liquids when there is a lamp or fire in the room, and ventilate the room after using them.

Acid-Flavored Gravy

A gravy flavored and made acid with currant jelly is often served with roast lamb or mutton. To each cupful of brown gravy made from the fat of the roast meat, add a glass or less of currant jelly. The addition of currant jelly is especially suitable when cold mutton is to be warmed up in gravy.

Milk in Refrigerator

In the ordinary refrigerator, unless the milk container is in actual contact with the ice, the milk will be colder at the bottom of the refrigerator than in the ice compartment, for cold air settles rapidly. The refrigerator should be kept clean and sweet at all times.

How About It?

Just what does all of this marvelous, miraculous development and increase in population that is now taking place in Southern California and San Diego mean to YOU individually? What did the announcement in last Sunday's Union of a new thirteen-story building for our down town district mean to you? What does the new Spreckels Building mean to you? Do our building permits have any particular significance? Does the fact that the rest of the entire United States is talking about San Diego as the next place to which there will be a great migration of people mean anything?

The answer is decidedly "No" unless you put yourself in a position to take some advantage financially of this condition and the way to do that is to become the possessor immediately of as much good San Diego real estate as you can afford to buy; then every new arrival, every new building permit, every new project and every dollar spent by the Chamber of Commerce in their advertising campaign of San Diego will benefit you directly by increasing the value of your holdings, because population and development increase values.

The story of development of Los Angeles reads like the wildest of fiction. The active happenings to people of limited means which have taken place up there would literally make your hair stand on end and send the cold shivers chasing each other up and down your spinal column. Go into the Wilshire section, the Hollywood section, the Beverly Hills section and make inquiries as to how the people of wealth now living there got their start and if the truth were told, you will find that nearly every other one came to Los Angeles a few years ago with only a few dollars and the willingness to work, save, sacrifice and invest in real estate and that they, in the course of time, fell into the hands of some real estate man who talked them into buying a piece of property, which was the start of their present day fortune. I read in a Los Angeles newspaper a couple of weeks ago of a Mr. and Mrs. Bennett who purchased the corner of Florence Avenue and Long Beach Boulevard in 1922 for $35,000 and recently disposed of it by a lease in such a manner as to net them $1,188,000. I read of Keng C. Killett's chauffeur, who four or five years ago purchased a lot in Beverly Hills for seventeen hundred dollars and recently disposed of just an interest in it in such a manner as to net him one hundred thousand dollars. I read of ordinary lots which sold three and a half years ago in Beverly Hills for fifteen hundred dollars now readily bringing fifty thousand.

This population and resultant development has meant something to the people who originally purchased these properties, but it could never have meant anything if they had refused to purchase. They could have walked up and down the streets and said, "How marvelous! How the city has grown!" but it would not have put one dollar in their pocket if they had not become a part and parcel of the city by purchasing its land.

I believe this same story will be written in a few years from now of San Diego, but if San Diego becomes a city of a million in a short time, it can mean nothing to you unless you own a part of it and then it can mean the difference between the ordinary existence and wealth.

Our property at Sunset Cliffs will soon be a thing of the past. The story, so far as the original sale is concerned, will soon be written. Then will remain the improvements to be completed, and after that the building. The improvements should all be completed in a few months' time as we have bonded ourselves in the sum of three hundred thousand dollars to complete the improvement program. Our prices are ridiculously cheap, the location, restrictions and improvements considered; and in a few days' time all prices are to be advanced on the remaining unsold lots, each inside lot will be advanced at least five hundred dollars and each corner at least a thousand. TODAY you can still buy at our present asking price. There are thousands of people in the city of San Diego who know that they should possess a piece of property at Sunset Cliffs, either from the standpoint of a future home or for an investment. Many will be disappointed because it will soon be too late.

There are momentous things about to happen in San Diego. I prophesy that before this year has passed, there will be announcements made in this city that will be so great and have so much to do with the future growth and welfare of this town that they will almost be staggering. I know personally of a great many new enterprises and developments which are now in the process of formation. It is my belief that one project alone will make an announcement of development which will entail the expenditure of something like ten millions of dollars inside the next sixty or ninety days. This one thing alone should mean an increase in the population of the city of San Diego, if it goes through, which I believe it will, of at least fifty thousand people.

Take these thoughts seriously because I believe they will put dollars in your pocket. This San Diego of ours is a wonderful spot. It is going to develop into a great city and should bring wealth and good fortune to thousands of people who believe in it and who have the courage of their convictions to the extent of buying its property. I am only human and do not pretend to possess any supernatural powers, but I do unhesitatingly prophesy that from now on you may expect to see a series of startling announcements of development for this town and this district, that should send realty values sky-rocketing in a very short space of time.

Why not now, today, while these thoughts are fresh in your mind, investigate something of what is taking place here in San Diego for yourselves, and I would suggest, as a good way to begin, a trip to our property, Sunset Cliffs.

For the convenience of those who may be interested in property of this kind, we have erected a large canvas pavilion on our Sunset Cliffs property, where a luncheon is served daily at 12:30 p. m., followed by an interesting, entertaining and educational lecture on San Diego, Southern California, real estate and investments. There is no charge nor obligation. We invite you to be our guests.
